

About a year ago this month we began to search for a personal trainer for my son, Hunter, to help improve him with certain skills needed to succeed on his high school basketball team. At first we were actually about to go with another trainer and then Bill convinced us otherwise. The second we walked in for our first personal training session and heard him speak and say the things he said we knew that he was the guy for us and the best fit for our son.

At the beginning of last summer our son, Hunters; dribbling skills were the first thing we knew we needed to improve. So one of the first things Bill had Hunter do was a drill called, "Ninety-four-fifty," which tracks the speed and control of the ball when you're dribbling to tell how well you're handling the ball. And at the beginning of this drill last summer he was at a very basic level with dribbling one ball, and now a year later he is dribbling with two balls at one time on advanced levels. His form of shooting was absolutely terrible last summer and Bill taught him almost a near perfect form.

Overall, this past year with Bill has been absolutely great, and we are so glad that we decided to go with Bill, we love his coaching style and his character, as person is amazing.

Bill has done an amazing job with my daughter Madeline. Last year after her sophomore season, we knew she needed some work to get to the next level (and hopefully a Div I scholarship). She was a great driver, but lacked a consistent jump shot and was hitting 48% of her free throws (really a bummer since she got to the line a lot with her drives). Three pointers were not even an option.

She started working with Bill in the spring and continues private lessons once a week even now. It has been an amazing turnaround! Bill was able to tweak sometimes just the smallest nuances of her shot but with big results. She is hitting 75% of her free throws for the season and in fact is 25 of her last 29 free throws during her team's current state title run. She received the ultimate compliment last night when her team was up with just a few minutes to go in the game. The other team was fouling, but the coach would yell, "don't foul her!" whenever she had the ball. She finished the night 8 for 8 from the line with 18 points.

Since she is by far the tallest girl on the team, she is not asked to take many threes, but she is 2 of 3 so far and consistently hits more than 50% in practice. She will get to test her skills during her AAU season where she will have the green light. Her dribbling has also improved dramatically. Bill uses the 94.50 system which has been great to get exact feedback on her dribbling and shooting technique.

In addition, Bill is a devout Christian and provides an outstanding positive environment for all kids. I wish I had recorded some of his post workout prayers as they are amazing! Bill is great for basketball players of any age. Young kids can learn the fundamentals correctly before they ingrain bad habits. High school kids may need a boost to make the team or maybe go after a scholarship. College kids can improve as Bill can coach at the highest of levels (his two sons are playing professionally right now). Anyone can contact me if they would like more info on Bill's Academy. Enjoy the Game!

This email is long overdue. Jennifer and I want to thank you for all you have done with Kyle's shot. I remember when Kyle first started taking lessons from you back in July 2012. I knew Kyle needed to change his shot if he wanted to continue to improve but I will admit, I was a little leery of him using his new shot in the free throw contest this year. He had always shot pretty well but it was a two handed shot with his feet close together. You immediately got him to change this.

I know he was frustrated and struggled early on, but you kept encouraging him. I remember you saying you didn't care what shot he used in the contest but you thought his new shot was coming along well. Kyle had the confidence to use the new shot in the local Elks Hoop Shoot contest in December 2012 and he won that contest. From there, he progressed by winning the District, State and Regional competitions. He finished second in the Elks National Hoop Shoot contest in Springfield, MA by making 24 out of 25 and 5 out of 5 to win the shoot off against three other boys for second place. This would not have happened without your tremendous coaching.

I was always a believer in your system but I am amazed at how fast you helped improve Kyle's shot. We've had numerous positive comments about the way his shot looks. I don't know how we can ever thank you for what you've done. If you ever need a testimonial or someone wants an opinion about your coaching, have them give us a call. Thanks again for all that you have done. His success is because of you.
